London, December 12.

The Articles at large of the Treaty of Peace, between the King of Sweden and King Stanislaus of Poland, on the one Part; and King Augustus Elector of Saxony on the other Part.

In the Name of the holy Trinity.

WHereas while Poland was under the Obedience of the most Serene and Potent Prince and Lord, Frederick Augustus, King, and Elector of Saxony, a cruel War broke out, which being carried on till this Seventh Year, has brought not only on the Kingdoms of Sweden and Poland, but likewise on the Electorate of Saxony various Troubles, Losses and Calamities; yet in the mean time Affairs took such a Turn, that the Republick of Poland being rent into Divisions, elected the most Serene and Potent Prince and Lord Stanislaus the First for their King; and to defend his Throne, made an Association with the most Serene and Potent Prince and Lord Charles the 12th, King of Sweden: By Means whereof, tho' it appear'd likely the Flames of War would rage with greater Violence, and spread more wide, yet it has happen'd by the singular Goodness of God, that the contending Princes and Kings conceiv'd in their Minds an earnest Desire of Peace, and concurr'd in mutual Wishes and Endeavours to extinguish the fatal Fire of this War. Hereupon the following Ministers were Appointed and Commission'd with full Power to transact so good a Work, that is to say, by his Sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden, the most Illustrious, most Excellent, and most Noble Persons, Charles Count Piper, one of the Royal Senate, chief Marshal of the Court, Councillor of the Royal Chancery, and Chancellor of the University of Upsal, and M. Olaus Hermelinus Secretary of State; by His Sacred Royal Majesty of Poland, as Confederate of his Sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden, the most Illustrious, most Excellent, and most Noble John Stanislaus Count Jablanowski, Palatine and General of the Territories of Russia, and Alexander Paul Count Sapieha chief Marshal of the great Dukedom of Lithuania; and on the Part of his Sacred Royal Majesty and Electoral Serenity, the most Illustrious, most Excellent, and most Noble Anthony Albrecht Baron of Imhof, Privy-Councillor and President of the Chamber, and M. George Ernestus Pfingstein Privy Referendarius (or Secretary:) Who assembling in the Swedish Camp, and having in due Form exchange'd the Instruments of their full Powers, concerted Matters so far, that by the Divine Assistance long wish'd for Peace may be restor'd, and mutual Articles of Friendship agreed of the following Tenour.

Article I. That there be perpetual firm Peace and sincere Friendship, between the most Serene and most Potent Prince and Lord Charles the 12th by the Grace of God King of the Swedes, Goths and Vandals, [his whole Title] and his Successors and future Kings, the Kingdom of Sweden, and the Territories and Provinces subject to it; as also the Confederate of his Sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden, the most Serene and most Potent Prince and Lord Stanislaus the 1st, by the Grace of God King of Poland, Great Duke of Lithuania [his whole Title] and his Successors and future Kings of Poland, and Great Dukes of Lithuania, and the Territories and Provinces subject to them; on the one Part: And the most serene and most potent Prince and Lord, Frederick Augustus, by the Grace of God King, Hereditary Duke of Saxony, chief Marshal and Elector of the Holy Roman Empire, Landgrave of Thuringia, Marquis of Misnia, and of the upper and lower Lusatia, Burgrave of Magdebourg, &c. and his Heirs and Successors on the other Part: That so all Hostility ceasing, neither Party may do any Damage, secretly or openly, directly or indirectly, to the other, nor cause it to be done by others; may attempt nothing to the Disadvantage or Prejudice of the other; may give no Assistance under any Pretence to the Enemies of the other; nor make Alliances with others contrary to this Pacification; but that both Parties may hold themselves oblig'd from henceforward to seek and do what may contribute to the Honour and Profit of each other, and to observe and maintain inviolably mutual Friendship and good Neighbourhood.

Art. II. That there be an eternal Oblivion of all Damages which either Party has sustain'd by reason of this War: Neither of the Parties shall reproach the other with any forepast Actions, nor make any Prosecution by open Force or under colour of Justice; nor demand Satisfaction of the other for the Sums expended or Damages suffer'd in the War.

¶ No private Persons shall be allow'd to commence any Action for recovering Confiscations made during the War: Be this however with a Salvo to the Tenour and Force of the 6th Article hereafter following.

Art. III. That the Root of this unhappy War, and of all Enmity may be pluck'd clear up, the most Serene Prince and Lord Frederick Augustus, King, and Elector of Saxony, induc'd by the Love of Peace, gives up the Kingdom of Poland, and renounces now and for ever all Right and Claim to Poland and the great Dukedom of Lithuania, and the Provinces subject to them: And by Virtue of this Treaty solemnly acknowledges and declares the most serene Prince and Lord Stanislaus I. for true and rightful King of Poland and great Duke of Lithuania; so that during his Life, and after his Decease, if he outlive him, he shall not form any Claim or Pretension to the Kingdom of Poland and great Dukedom of Lithuania:

¶ But 'tis agreed, that the most serene King and Elector of Saxony, shall retain the Name and Honours of a King, yet without the Arms and Title of King of Poland.

Art. IV. The most serene King and Elector further promises, that he will notify and manifest this his Abdication to the Estates of the Republick of Poland by a solemn Diploma directed to them; and that within six Weeks to be reckon'd from the Day of the concluding and subscribing of this Treaty, he will cause that Diploma to be deliver'd into the Hands of the most serene King of Sweden. Likewise from this time, and by this present Agreement he absolves and discharges the said Estates of the Republick of Poland, with all and singular the Inhabitants of Poland and Lithuania from the Oath and Obedience by which they were before bound, and permits them to swear Allegiance and Obedience to the most serene King Stanislaus I.

¶ He also promises bona fide, that from henceforward he will not, secretly or openly, concert any Measures with them: That he will not receive, abet, or protect, any of them who may already have refus'd Submission to the new King, or shall hereafter maliciously withdraw from his Obedience: nor with them, or any others, whatever, attempt anything that may be Prejudicial to this Agreement; the most serene King Stanislaus, and the Republick of Poland.

Art. V. In like manner he does by this present Pacification abrogate and declare void, all Alliances and Agreements that he has made with other Princes and States against the most serene Kings of Sweden and Poland; and especially those he enter'd into with the Czar of Muscovy against the said Kings and Kingdoms, either before or during this War.

¶ From henceforward he shall not only forbear sending any Succours to the said Czar of Muscovy, but shall recal out of his Service all the Saxon Auxiliaries formerly sent him now, and carrying Arms among the Muscovite Troops.

Art. VI. So likewise all Decrees and Statutes, vulgarly call'd Awards, especially those pass'd in the Senatus-Consultum of Warsaw, the Conventions of Marienbourg, Thorn, Elbing, Javarow, Sandomir, Cracow, Brezeze, Olchinia, the last at Grodno, and other Congresses, and in the Assemblies at Lublin, so far as they are found contrary to this Pacification; as also all Confiscations of Estates, Abolitions of Offices and Employments.

Employments, and Outlawries that have been made since the 15th of February 1704, N. S. are now and for ever abrogated and annul'd.

¶ It shall be in the Power of the most serene King of Poland to resume and confirm whatever Dignities Employments or Benefices, Ecclesiastical or Secular, have since that time been conferr'd by the most serene King and Elector on Persons of his Party.

The rest of these Articles shall be in our next.

EDINBURGH.

Minutes of the Proceedings in Parliament, Dec. 5.
The 14th Article of Union was again Read, and an Amendment and Addition thereto was offer'd in these Terms, And that the part of the United Kingdom now called Scotland, shall not in all time coming be charged with any Malt-Tax, or any other Customs, Excises, Taxes, or any other Burdens or Duties than those consented to in this Treaty. And after some Reasoning upon the first part of the said Clause, in relation to the Malt-Tax, it was propos'd that the Amendment should be in these Terms with this further Provision, That any Malt to be made and consum'd within that part of the United Kingdom now called Scotland, shall not be charg'd with any Imposition on Malt during this present War. And after some further debate, the Vote was stated whether the exemption from any Imposition on Malt shall be Temporary or Perpetual. But before Voting it was agreed that the Members shall be mark'd as they Vote, and that the List of their Names shall be Printed and Recorded accordingly. Then the Vote was put whether the Exemption shall be Temporary or Perpetual, and it carried Temporary by 32. Thereafter it was propos'd, that the Exemption shall be during this present War. It was also propos'd that the Exemption shall be for a longer time. And after debate thereon the Vote was stated whether the Exemption from any Imposition on Malt shall be during this present War or for a longer time, and it carried during this present War by my Lord Chancellor's casting Vote. Then the Article as amended was again Read, and the further Consideration thereof delay'd till next Sederunt of Parliament, to be then proceeded upon previous to all other Business.
